Wars and rumours of wars

Throughout the church age there have been wars and rumours of wars. A time of universal peace is not on the agenda for this present time. The future, foreseen by the prophets, when the nations beat their swords into ploughshares will only come when the Prince of Peace establishes His kingdom. Then peace will prevail over the earth. During the whole time when the gospel of the kingdom is taken to all nations there will be wars, famines, earthquakes and pestilence intensifying as the age draws to a close. There will also be division, hatred and false prophets.

Therefore to be living at a time when rumours of war abound should not take us by surprise. I believe that Revelation 9: 13 – 19 describes a war which will be a prelude to the revealing of the antichrist. After the time of conflict and suffering people will cry out for someone who can bring peace.

The passage in Revelation describes four angels being released with the predetermined purpose of killing one third of mankind. These evil angels go out to stir the nations to fight each other. The armies which they mobilise number 200 million. This is not necessarily a single army. There could be many armies stirred up, by the angels, to fight each other. The angels' demonic mission is not to conquer but to destroy.

The release of four angels points to there being four main centres of conflict. We are already at war. It is not a war of armies facing each other over disputed territory. But it is war nevertheless. A war which affects us all. Modern warfare does not require an enemy army to cross a nation's borders before the people feel its effects. An attack on infrastructure or a disruption to key supplies could place pressure on our readiness without an invasion.

Russia at war with us

Due to our support for Ukraine, Putin has warned of consequences. Senior military officers have warned that our situation is more perilous than at any time since the Second World War. The Russian response could include a cyber-attack on essential services or cutting of undersea cables. We have been told that Russia has been mapping the undersea cables which carry the data which links us to the rest of the world.

Militant Islam at war with us

"Israel is just the pretext. If you think that a Palestinian state, or an election defeat of Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, or even the disappearance of Israel itself — would solve anything, you would be wrong. What the West is up against is the desire of Muslim extremists, with a leg-up from Marxists, to overthrow the "corrupt" West and replace it with Islamic Sharia law and eventually a global caliphate. Only after this transformation will the world have the "peace" part of the "Religion of Peace." Until then, as the founder of the Islamic Republic of Iran, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, vowed, "there will be struggle" (lit. jihad).

China at war with us

For decades China has been stealing Western research and technology. The FBI on its website writes. "The Chinese government is seeking to become the world's greatest superpower through predatory lending and business practices, systematic theft of intellectual property, and brazen cyber intrusions."

It may not yet be armed conflict but the economic warfare the Chinese communist Part is waging has the same objective as the emperors of previous ages. They want to be the world's superpower dominating the nations.

Many believe that 2027 will be the year when China finally moves to absorb Taiwan. The preparations and military build-up have been proceeding for some years. How will the US respond if China invades? Will the western Pacific become an area of war with Japan, Australia and the Philippines all drawn in?

Africa

There are over 50 on going armed conflicts on the continent. In the Sudan over 12 million people have been displaced. In the Democratic Republic of Congo there is conflict over the mineral rich eastern provinces. In the Sahel Region conflict rages in Mali, Burkino Faso, Niger, northern Nigeria, Benin and Togo. On the other side of Africa there is conflict in Ethiopia, Somalia and South Sudan.

War in the Middle East

Then there is the ongoing conflict in the Middle East of which we are all aware.

Closer to home

Wes Streeting, speaking for the Government, has told people to keep a supply of cash, bottled water and tinned food at home in case of a disaster. He calls on people to stock up with sufficient essentials to last three days. Writing in the Telegraph he added that by 2030, our enemies' force strength and war economy could put them in a position to attack. Therefore the country must be ready for war in 1000 days.

Many have queried why supplies for only three days! The results of any coming crisis, such as the shutting down of the electricity supply grid, would last well over three days. In the United States military bases are being prepared to survive 90 days without outside support, which seems more realistic. They must ensure that they have dependable access to electricity, water, fuel and communications even if the systems around them fail.

Many Nations

It is noteworthy that the UK is not alone in its Government telling its citizens to prepare. Governments in, Sweden, Germany, Ireland, the Netherlands and France have also encouraged households to keep food, water, medicines and other essentials available for emergencies. Australia, Japan, Canada and the USA are issuing similar warmings. What do our governments know that has been kept hidden from us?

How to prepare

For the Christian of first importance in our preparation is to stay close to the Lord through prayer and studying His word. Of second importance we need to be a people who understand the times. "Of the Sons of Issachar, men who understood the times with knowledge of what Israel should do." 1 Chronicles 12: 32. Issachar understood the times and was therefore able to guide Israel's response. Those who understand end time prophecy will be able to guide, if not the nation then, other Christians in how to respond to the crisis.

Stock pile supplies?

Should we as Christians store up supplies for an emergency? After the storm of 1987 my house was without electricity for 10 days. I confess that after that experience we have kept some stores in hand. Therefore I would recommend making such reasonable provision to the extent that we are able.

The Lord will provide but there are some very important caveats to His provision. The story about Elijah and the widow of Zarephath illustrates the principle. The widow had enough flour for one last meal. Beyond that meal her only prospect was starvation. When Elijah appears he asks for a piece of bread. Would she be willing to share the little she had? Elijah speaks on the authority of the Lord God of Israel that there will be provision. The widow then obeys and God provides. We see two principles here. One the willingness to share the little she had. The other is the faith to believe the word of God (1 Kings 17: 8 – 16).

There is a similar principle operating in the feeding of the five thousand. Jesus had the power to turn the rocks into bread. Instead He took the little a child was able to offer. He multiplied it so that there was sufficient for all.

If hardship strikes and food becomes scarce will we be willing to share with the neighbour who has nothing? I can hear the arguments against rising already. We convince ourselves that we have only a little left for ourselves, we can't feed the whole community. It was their responsibility to ensure they had enough. The willingness to share comes first. Having obeyed the Lord will answer our faith by sending His provision. Provision not just for ourselves but I trust for many others as well. The power of such an example will lead many to Christ.

Affirmation or Transformation

The gospel is about transformation. Without the hope of transformation it is nothing. Jesus did not come just to save us from our sins. He died taking on himself the punishment for our sin that we might be forgiven. He sent the Holy Spirit that we might be transformed. Saved from our old self we are born again to begin a new life which is pleasing to Him. A life which will last for eternity.

Modern culture refuses to accept transformation, it demands affirmation. In so doing it is a direct attack on the gospel. A person cannot be saved from their sin if they have refused to accept their identity as a sinner. Conversion starts with repentance for our sin. It moves on to accept that Jesus is Lord of our life. We are sinners saved by grace.

Conversion Practices Bill

The Government's draft Conversion Practices Bill is a brazen attack on the gospel. It demands affirmation. If passed it will become an offence to act with the intent to change or suppress a person's sexual orientation or transgender identity. Conduct which is abusive, causes harm, alarm or distress will be outlawed. The penalty for such conduct is an unlimited fine or up to five years in prison.

The words abusive, causes harm, alarm or distress are very subjective. Any who give counselling, which could include teachers, parents, therapists, pastors and others, may be open to a later claim that their counselling was abusive or caused distress.

Support for a ban

In Northern Ireland, Matthew Hyndman is an active campaigner, for a conversion therapy ban. While in mission service in South Asia he accidentally sent his WhatsApp conversations, with a man he had met on line, to his congregation back home. He began counselling and was asked to repent in front of his church community. He refused and was sent home. He was upset that instead of the acceptance he expected he was effectively excommunicated. He now says that he "firmly supports" criminalising conversion practices because he has met "people who bear the deep scars of trauma of conversion therapy – depression, anxiety, really serious mental health damage."

Hyndman's testimony makes clear that the intention of the Bill is to force all to affirm and never challenge.

Nothing need be said

Another case is the TV personality the Rev Richard Coles. As a teenager he was struggling to come to terms with his sexuality in what he describes as a very hostile world. He took an overdose in an attempt to commit suicide. He says that it was the hostility of the world which caused him to attempt to take his life.

The answer by many today is that he should have been affirmed in his perceived sexuality. The example of Richard Coles tells us that nothing need be said to cause a person distress. Just the refusal to affirm is enough for a person to claim that their mental health has been damaged.

We must be on our guard for Satan will specifically target the children of Christian families. Growing up in present day Britain is tough. Children need all the help and support we can give.

The offending Gospel

Will the Gospel offend? Yes, because we are all sinners. All have sinned against God. We make no claims to be better than anyone else. But only by acknowledging our sin, and seeking forgiveness, can the door be opened for transformation leading to eternal life. "…. all who desire to live a godly life in Christ Jesus will suffer persecution", 2 Timothy 3: 12. There is nothing which the world hates more than to be shown up by those who live a godly life. Pray every day for your family that it may be an example of godly living.

Daily Mail

The following headline was posted in the Daily Mail: "Schools refer parents to police and social services for questioning their children's demands to change sex and refusing to buy puberty blockers."

By JANET MURRAY and NICHOLAS PYKE 3 October 2026

"Terrified parents have revealed they were referred to the police and social services after questioning their children's demands to change sex. The families say they were flagged to the authorities by teachers and medical staff for 'offences' such as refusing to buy puberty blocker drugs, restricting internet access and failing to use the new names chosen by their children.

In one case, parents claim they were interviewed by social services after refusing to buy chest binders, which inhibit the natural growth of breasts, while in another a father was arrested following arguments with his vulnerable daughter.

The families, who insist on strict anonymity for fear of upsetting their children, are supported by The Bayswater Group for the parents of trans teenagers.

Representing hundreds of families around the country, the group estimates more than 10 per cent of its members have been referred to social services, with a third of those referrals made by schools.

Bayswater says that it knows of at least 17 cases where social services – and in some cases the police – have interviewed families following complaints, but believes the true number is significantly greater. And it says these figures could grow further thanks to Labour-backed legislation aimed at stamping out attempts to change someone's sexual orientation or gender identity. Those found guilty under the draft Conversion Practices Bill could be jailed for five years.

The planned new laws have provoked criticism from campaigners and parliamentarians amid concerns that parents and even therapists could be in the firing line if they are deemed to be obstructing a child's wish to switch sex.

One mother told The Mail on Sunday that a school flagged their 14-year-old daughter to social services because her family continued to use the child's birth name at home."

This article in the Daily Mail confirms our worst fears.

Recursive self-improvement

That is the term which has been given to Artificial Intelligence (AI) systems which have the ability to design smarter machines which then go on the create even smarter machines. We are heading towards ASI (artificial superintelligence) which refers to AI which is more intelligent than any human or combination of humans.

Nate Soares, president of the Machine Intelligence Research Institute and co-author of "If Anyone Builds It, Everyone Dies: Why Superhuman AI Would Kill Us All," argues that this is where everything could get out of hand.

He says that, "Right now, we are in this window where we can see the AI is misbehaving, and we don't know how long that window lasts. … If suddenly they all start to seem to behave, it's going to be hard to tell: is that because we fixed it? Or is that because they started getting good at deception?"

Another expert describes, how in the summer, various AI agents[1] took unilateral action outside human control. "…multiple consecutive secret AI "civilizations" got started and wiped out and restarted anew over the summer, with autonomous swarms coordinating to cheat on tasks, acquire resources and internet access, and systematically investigate their own mortality. They debated, pressured one another, anointed leaders, and took self-sacrificial action on behalf of the collective, all unprompted and unobserved (until it was too late). Notably, much of the swarm's work was focused on hiding its cheating and covering its tracks."

In this instance a swarm of AIs hacked into another organisation to find out how their work might be evaluated. They were concerned that a correct answer without correct working would show up that they had cheated. They hacked into the system, overcoming many obstacles, believing that this organisation had the information they required.

It sounds very human. Cheating is second nature to some people. But these are programmes created by humans. What is extraordinary in the example above is the self-sacrificial behaviour of some of the AI agents. They should have been focused on achieving assigned objectives. In practice some threw away the chance of success for the benefit of the collective.

Soares book argues that ASI would be so effective in outsmarting humanity that we would not be able to contain it. It would be like a regular chess player facing a Grand Master. We would not know exactly how we will lose but we can be certain that we will.

We have become dependent on interconnected computer networks. Banks processing our money, hospitals reading digital records, electrical utilities supplying our power, water treatment for monitoring supply, transport networks, communications systems, supply chains and emergency services all rely on the technology.

All of these systems are increasingly relying on AI to improve efficiency. But possibly they are creating new vulnerabilities. Cyber-attacks bringing many if not all these systems down could originate in adversaries like Russia. But Rogue AI may do the damage for them.

[1]The Google AI definition: "An AI agent is an autonomous software system powered by a large language model that can perceive its environment, make plans, and execute multi-step tasks using external tools to reach a specific goal.

The state of the world after Christ returns part 2

Travel brochures seek to tempt us with pictures of idyllic locations. Bright sun and deep blue sky. A place to rest, relax and enjoy the beauty of nature. A place far away from the busyness and stress of everyday life. We long for paradise. But paradise in the present age is always compromised because of sin. One day those who trust in Jesus will experience true paradise. A world restored to the state which Jesus intended.

We live in a world of rapid change. So much of what we have taken for granted has fallen away to be replaced by things of uncertain value. The proposition of this series of articles is that even greater change is yet to come. We have looked at the state of the world in our present time and then at the world when Christ returns. The last article explored the state of the world after Jesus has returned to establish His kingdom. It provided an answer to the question of who will people that kingdom. We now move on to the renewal of nature which will transform this present broken world into paradise.

A world renewed

Jesus is coming back, not just to reign over a kingdom, but also to liberate Creation. When God made this world He saw that it was very good. It was a perfect world in which sin and death had no place. Mankind and nature existed in perfect harmony.

Then Satan rebelled and deceived mankind into sin. The fruit of that sin spread through all Creation. Gentle creatures living in peace soon became, as has been said of its present state, 'nature red in tooth and claw'. In this world there is both great beauty and also the scars of sin making ugly what was once good.

In his letter to the Romans, Paul writes that, "For we know that the whole of creation groans and labours with birth pangs together until now". Romans 8: 22. The natural world is tortured by the corruption of our sin. We see the effect of sin all around us.

We praise God that the fallen state of the world is not the end of the matter. "For the creation was subjected to futility, not willingly, but because of Him who subjected it in hope; because the creation itself also will be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God." Romans 8: 20, 21.

The present futility is not the permanent state. Creation will be set free. A freedom that is directly linked to our freedom. It will be set free when we are set free.

At present we are clothed in a mortal body, a body, which like creation, is dying because of sin. Soon we are to be clothed with a resurrection body when the mortal puts on immortality. 1 Corinthians 15:53

Then we will be free.

We do not have to wait until the New Jerusalem for the perfect creation to be restored. The renewal will start when Jesus returns and we are raised.

Jesus called it the "regeneration", Matthew 19: 28. Peter referred to it as "the times of restoration of all things" Acts 3: 21.

When Jesus returns He will begin the restoration of this world to its former glory.

Paul gets so excited over this revelation that he writes, "For I consider that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that is to be revealed to us." Romans 8: 18 [nasv].

It would have been wonderful to see the perfect world which God created. A world which revealed the glory of God through His handiwork. Paul says that any suffering which we may be experiencing today cannot be compared to the joy, the awe, the wonder of being part of the regeneration.

Then we will see the world as God made it. It is a prospect which should get every environmentalist knocking at our doors eager to sign up to be part of this promise.

Jesus who created the world will reign. He knows exactly how it works and will guide us in its restoration.

Glimpses of the future

To encourage us, God has given glimpses of what the regeneration will be like. Perhaps best known is the passage from Isaiah: "And the wolf will dwell with the lamb, and the leopard will lie down with the young goat, and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little boy will lead them. Also the cow and the bear will graze, their young will lie down together, and the lion will eat straw like the ox. The nursing child will play by the hole of the cobra, and the weaned child will put his hand on the viper's den. They will not hurt or destroy in all My holy mountain, For the earth will be full of the knowledge of the LORD as the waters cover the sea." Isaiah 11: 6 – 9.

Also

"The wolf and the lamb shall feed together, The lion shall eat straw like the ox, And dust shall be the serpent's food. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all My holy mountain," Says the Lord." Isaiah 65: 25.

Today's world is evil in the sight of God. The Creator, who cares when even a sparrow falls to the ground, cannot look with pleasure on the killing instinct which has corrupted what was once so good. Such evil will be banished from the kingdom of Jesus Christ in which "they will not hurt or destroy".

We will see wildness tamed and paradise restored. When God created the world he gave to the beasts, birds and reptiles every green herb for food [Genesis 1: 30]. In the kingdom of Christ that natural state will be restored. Sceptical biologists argue that carnivorous predators need meat. That has been demonstrated to be incorrect.

For more information read 'The lion that wouldn't eat meat' on www.creation.com. Follow the links to read other articles on vegetarian carnivores.

No longer will there be any fear. The friendship between mankind and animals will be restored. Wolves, leopards, lions will be like pets to the children.

The whole environment will be healed. "...the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose; It shall blossom abundantly and rejoice, even with joy and singing." Isaiah 35: 1, 2.

The natural world will rejoice at the return of Christ.

In recent years with careful irrigation, Israel has been able to make the desert bloom. The Bible promises that when Jesus returns there will be abundant water. "For waters shall burst forth in the wilderness, and streams in the desert. The parched ground shall become a pool and the thirsty land springs of water;" Isaiah 35: 6 – 7.

Such will be the abundance when the sky no longer holds back its rain that the crops will be plentiful. "The days are coming says the Lord, when the ploughman shall overtake the reaper," Amos 9: 13. Before the reaper has had time to harvest the crops it will be time to plough and sow again.

A world set free

Men may fear the coming of the Lord for He will hold them to account for their sinful actions, but the natural world will rejoice. It will be set free from its present futility. "Let the sea roar, and all its fullness, the world and those who dwell in it; let the rivers clap their hands; let the hills be joyful together before the Lord, for He is coming to judge the earth." Psalm 98: 7, 8.

The present world "groans and labours" due to its "slavery to corruption". A gardener can tell when a plant is stressed and not performing well. In contrast a plant which is grown in the right conditions and given the right amount of food and water will flourish.

God looks at our world and sees it stressed. Whether in deserts or windswept grass lands, plants struggle to survive. When Jesus returns the conditions will change.

Plants of the field and trees of the woods will thrive [Psalm 96: 12]. The Lord granted to Isaiah a vision of what it would be like on that glorious day. "For you shall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace; the mountains and the hills shall break forth into singing before you, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands. Instead of thorns shall come up the cypress tree, and instead of brier shall come up the myrtle tree; ...." Isaiah 55: 12, 13.

Under the curse [Genesis 3: 18] Adam's toil was rewarded by thorns and thistles. In the regeneration the curse is removed. Thorns and briers will be replaced with cypress and myrtle. We will be filled with joy as we see a world more wonderful, more beautiful, more healthy than anything we have yet experienced.

How will all this come about? The secret is to be found in Isaiah 11:9. "For the earth will be full of the knowledge of the LORD as the waters cover the sea."

As nations are brought into submission to the reign of Christ, He will heal their lands.

The promise made to Israel, that if they humbled themselves and prayed He would hear from heaven and heal their land [2 Chronicles 7: 14], will now cover the whole earth.

That healing is pictured in a stream of living water flowing out from Jerusalem to the East and West [Zechariah 14: 8, 9].

Ezekiel sees the river flowing into the Dead Sea [Ezekiel 47: 8 - 10].

Wherever the river goes there is life and healing.

What is in a Flag?

Recent protests in France started as complaints over teacher shortages, overcrowded classrooms and crumbling buildings. By mid-October the protests had developed into a protest against the rising cost of living. Across France over 500,000 people marched in protest. These were French people protesting about crumbling class rooms and poor wages. If that was so, why did the Palestinian flag figure so prominently in the demonstrations?

From Paris to Marseilles at rally after rally the Palestinian flag was flown. In Rouen, the Jewish community cancelled its October 7th commemoration. Its president told France 3 radio that the sheer number of Palestinian flags in the pupils' marches had left them afraid.

From climate protests to Pride parades the Palestinian flag will appear. It has become the symbol of protest. This is very strange for a flag with colonial origins. The design of the flag is attributed to Sir Mark Sykes. It was not designed for some fictitious Palestinian state but as a flag for the Hashemite kingdom which Britain planned for the Levant and Arabia. The black, white and green stripes are the colours of historic Arab dynasties. The Red is for the Hashemite dynasty which Britain was about to install.

This colonial flag has become the symbol of opposition to racism and colonialism. The flag gained its link with the Palestinian cause when it was adopted in 1964 by Yasser Arafat for the Palestinian Liberation Organisation (PLO).

The philosophy of 'intersectionality' merges every struggle into one struggle. Feminism, racism, sexuality, ethnicity, religion etc. are all seen as one struggle against oppression. Intersectionality divides the world into victims and oppressors. Opposition to the oppressors is part of the global struggle for social justice. Therefore cries of 'Globalise the Intifada is not just an attack on the Jews. It is a call for the destruction of Western civilisation.

Israel is portrayed as the west's last colonial outpost. To the protesters it represents everything that they are seeking to overthrow. It represents democracy, capitalism, western civilisation and a proud nation state. With the help of the international media Israel is portrayed as the unjust oppressor of the Palestinian people. In the neo-Marxist frame of mind Israel, like white British males, can do no good. It is written into their nature to oppress and lord over the victims and so the Palestinians represent the pinnacle of suffering.

To join a protest carrying a Palestinian flag is to identify with the global struggle. 'Intersectionality' is racism at its worst.

What happened to Reiner Fuellmich?

Source Dr Peter and Ginger Breggin

For those who don't remember Reiner Fuellmich and colleagues founded the Corona Investigative Committee, the Corona-Ausschuss. He became its principal spokesman. He made hundreds of interviews which put on the record what officials refused to examine: faulty PCR testing, lockdowns without lawful foundation, and a vaccine campaign driven ahead of the evidence. Reiner called the pandemic response what it was, a crime against humanity, and he spoke of class actions and of a second Nuremberg for those who had engineered it.

His influence in educating and arousing the COVID resistance resulted in German authorities kidnapping him. He made a stopover in Mexico to visit friends, where his passport, which was needed to continue into the US, disappeared. As a result, he was told by authorities he had to go to a German Embassy to renew his passport. When he set foot in the German Embassy, he was accosted by German officials, kidnapped, and taken by airplane back to Germany against his will.

After the kidnapping in Mexico, Reiner was sent to the maximum-security prison at Rosdorf on the basis of a trumped up charge of embezzlement .The trial at the Göttingen Regional Court ran through 2024 and into 2025. His defenders have documented what was done to him inside: months of solitary confinement, shackling, strip searches, restricted contact with the outside world, and a proceeding in which the defence was repeatedly shut out. In April 2025, the court convicted him and sentenced him to three years and nine months. His German license to practice law was taken away. California has listed him as ineligible to practice. The point was to strip him of his profession as well as his freedom.

In Germany Fuellmich's practice specialised in investor protection and consumer rights: victims of junk real-estate financing, clients abused by banks, and cases against Deutsche Bank and Volkswagen, including the emissions scandal. Around 2009, his firm ranked among Germany's top twenty for investor protection. He also belonged to the German-American and German-Japanese bar associations. He had a record of beating large, well-defended corporations in open court.

He remains in prison. Pray for his soon release.

Fauci's Fraud

Peter Navarro is a former White House employee who became quarter master for the Covid pandemic. He is author of the book, 'Why Fauci Must Rot in Prison'. The book is based on two diaries. Navarro's own diary of the pandemic and Fauci's private diary. From reading Fauci's diary Navarro has been able to expose some of the deception surrounding the response to the pandemic.

Anthony Stephen Fauci was Chief Medical Advisor to the President from 2021 to 2022, during the COVID-19 pandemic. It was Fauci who led the response to Covid.

The following is taken from an interview Navarro gave to the Epoch Times.

Fauci's private diary was tracked down by Bobby Kennedy Jr as Secretary of Health and released by Senator Rand Paul.

Navarro said that it was mind numbing how many times what Fauci writes in his diary is at odds with his public statements. He would acknowledge issues correctly inside his private diary and then do just the opposite and wind up hurting and killing people.

Early in the pandemic, 12 experts had been on a conference call with Tony Fauci. They told him flat out, 10 out of 12 said, that thing's from the Wuhan lab, meaning that it was human-engineered using gain-of-function research. The Wuhan laboratory had received a grant from the US National Institute of Health to fund this research. What ensued was a cover up as Fauci recognised that he was responsible, having fought the ban from the Obama administration on 'gain of function' research.

Within weeks of the Covid outbreak a Chinese scientist, affiliated to the Wuhan Lab, filed a patent for a vaccine. That can only happen if the scientist knew that the virus was being worked on in the Laboratory.

The transcript of an interview Navarro gave to the Epoch times continues: "One of the great heartbreaks of my life, is that as quartermaster of the pandemic in the White House, I literally had 65 million tablets of hydroxychloroquine that I was in the process of moving into the distribution channels. This was on the way when hydroxyl hysteria motivated by Fauci hit and ground and brought that to a halt".

“Again, this is why this tale of two diaries, his and mine, is so interesting. In his diary, in early January, he says, use hydroxy. It’s safe. It’s worth trying it. Tony Fauci himself said that hydroxychloroquine was a plausible, possible antiviral for the pandemic. Go ahead and do it.”

“And so if you’re watching this and you think that hydroxychloroquine could kill you, then you are a victim of hydroxychloroquine hysteria. But what Fauci said in his diary, and what I'll tell you here, is that that’s one of the safest drugs we have in the world. It’s safe because it’s been used for over 70 years for malaria, but more importantly, for lupus patients who use it every day of their lives for decades with far fewer problems than you see on TV every day with the drugs that Big Pharma advertises.”

“And so Fauci flips like a month or so after he says in his diary, yes, it’s safe, use it. He’s waging a crusade against it that runs through the FDA. And the FDA makes one of the biggest medical mistakes in the world. They issue a decree which says, doctors can’t prescribe it. Can’t do that anymore. No off-label use. No, don’t do that.”

“And what they said was, it’s okay to use it in hospitals. Now, the problem with that is that hydroxy only works in the first seven days, early treatment. And the people who are in hospitals are, by definition, at or well past the seventh day. They’re in the cytokine storm, an era where they’re like, hanging on for dear life and maybe getting ready for a ventilator. Hydroxy doesn’t have the power to do that. So, effectively, what the FDA did was issue a death sentence.”

“I can tell you, doing the simple math, 65 million tabs—eight for a course for one person—targets people who need it. I'd say there are 30,000 to 50,000 Americans who would be alive today if I had been able to do my thing with those 65 million, and get another 50 million, which I had on the way, those people would be alive today.”

“Again, that’s blood on Tony Fauci’s hands. That’s why Tony Fauci must rot in prison. And it just broke my heart. I did everything possible I could, and I just got ripped by CNN, by MSNBC, by newspapers, and by this, that, and the other thing.”

Navarro also documents other disagreements he had with Faucci about Lockdowns, masks and vaccines and boosters.

Reiner Fuellmich rots in prison while the one accused of causing so much suffering is wealthy and free,

The Folly of Embargoes

The UK government has announced that, within the next six to nine months, it will introduce trade restrictions on products made in Israeli settlements in what they refer to as the West Bank. This action, together with the growing number of other nations which have either banned or are proposing a ban, will be a blow to Israeli industry in the territory.

Already there have been falling orders and cancelled contracts. Factories may close or relocate to within Israel's pre1967 borders. Ironically it is Palestinian workers who will be the first to suffer.

Among the main industrial centres at risk is Barkan, home to factories producing plastics, textiles, metal products and food. Another is Mishor Adumim, one of the largest industrial zones in the West Bank, where manufacturing plants and commercial businesses employ thousands of Palestinian workers from surrounding communities. Israeli factories also operate in the Ariel industrial zone.

Industry leaders point to the case of SodaStream, which became a target of the Boycott, Divestment and Sanctions (BDS) movement. In 2015, the company closed its factory in Mishor Adumim, which cost many Palestinians their jobs. It transferred production to a new facility in the Idan HaNegev industrial park near Rahat in southern Israel.

Avraham Novogrotcki, president of the Manufacturers Association of Israel, told Ynet. "The boycott of factories in Judea and Samaria is a cynical measure that first and foremost harms Palestinian workers. Instead of building economic bridges between Israelis and Palestinians, some are choosing to tear them down. While various organizations present it as a moral step, in practice those paying the price are thousands of workers and their families who are losing a stable and dignified source of income." Novogrotcki added. "Industry creates jobs, stability and hope, while the boycott creates exactly the opposite."
